

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Chili has signified a willingness to do the proper thing.

The Emperor of China is almost a dwarf, being hardly five feet in height.

Mrs. Timothy S. Keefe, wife of the well-known pitcher of the N. Y. club, is foremost in the list of American scoldsters.

The W. C. T. U. has lost one of its devoted workers in the death of Miss Julia Ames, associated editor of the Union Signal.

A Rhode Island woman forty-seven years old, has her seventh husband, who is a brother of her first and fifth. Carson has a woman living with her sixth husband.

It is thought that the movement to make the salary of the Governor of Massachusetts (who gets $5000 a year) equal to that of the Mayor of Boston ($10,000) will be successful.

This office acknowledges the receipt of Controller Horton's annual report. It is a neat and concise pamphlet, and among other things shows that Nevada has given nearly $64,000 for charitable purposes.

Lord Lyton, disliked the idea of the custom of associating flowers with death and in accordance with his wish there were no bouquets or floral wreaths placed upon the coffin, nor was there one single bud or blossom thrown into the grave with him.

Henry A. Hebert, a wealthy Englishman who has become interested in Nevada, has arranged to transport 2000 Irish families from the Irish estate, Muckross Abbey, to Nevada. He has 15,000 acres near Owens lake and will irrigate the land. The first of the Irish to reach the spot will arrive by March 1st.—S. F. Report.

An undertaker in San Francisco advertises that he has "lady undertakers" to prepare "lady corpses" for the grave. We wonder if the Almighty has fallen into the new fad and will have "lady angels" to usher these "lady corpses" into the "ladies' heaven." B. H. The very sight of the name sickens a man, and certainly ought to nauseate every true woman.—Sacramento Bee.

The postmaster who floated the Confederate flag over a government building in Texas makes the following lame explanation. He says he is sorry, and that the flag was home-made concern intended to represent the United States flag, but the young woman who undertook to make it was not acquainted with the design and the nearest she could get to it was to make a flag of three bars, with nine stars in the blue field. The expression of regret and the disclaimer of any intention to act disloyally might serve as an excuse but the man who makes the above explanation ought to have his accounts audited frequently.

The following story of Abraham Lincoln's ready wit is one of the best. The Salt Lake Tribune tells it this way:

Thomas H. Benton was a natural bull dozer. His daughter, Mrs. Jessie Benton-Fremont, was like her father in personal appearance and disposition. Her husband was a Major General, and for cause was relieved from the service. His wife went to Mr. Lincoln to seek the restoration of her husband to his military command. Mr. Lincoln was obliged to refuse the request. It was a hard thing to do, because Fremont was one of the founders of the Republican party, and his wife was a very much respected and revered lady. When refused, she exclaimed: "Dearest, Mr. Lincoln, we make Presidents," to which Lincoln in his quiet way responded, "and very poor jobs you have turned out for the most part." This paralyzed Mrs. Fremont and she retired in dismay, and when one thinks of the character of the woman and her disposition, it is easy to see that never in his life did Mr. Lincoln make a more appropriate answer, one that covered the whole case and left nothing to be added, and at the same time carried a reproof so potent, though indirect, as in those few words. It will take the world a thousand years to appreciate just how big a man Abraham Lincoln was.
